

When it comes to the different countries, theatre has a better success rate compared with other categories of funding. If we filter the graph by country and parent category, plays have a better chance of success. In terms of months, June and July were the most successful months for crowd funding. There may be even more data we can use to make the best judgment. We only went through a couple different charts to see the trend, we could have gone through some other different charts like the pie chart, etc., and have a better picture of what the data is.